To Whom It May Concern:

It is my pleasure to write a letter of reference for the JoAnne Moore writing program. I had the privilege of attending her highly engaging session as teacher at Brentwood Elementary School, and later have been able to modify her story writing templates for use as part of an inclusive digital writing program.

JoAnne first consulted with us to determine the best direction for her work. She was extremely meticulous in describing her learning outcomes, but still was able to introduce us to a myriad of examples of published work that could be used to launch a successful literary writing program. She had so much to offer and provided enriching alternatives for our learners that continue to be used to this day.

As part of a growing demand to bridge JoAnne's attractive writing program with popular multi-media type software such as MS PowerPoint, we were able to successfully design a series of templates in PowerPoint to provide learners with a wider variety of options to share their writing. The record option in PowerPoint proved very useful for struggling writers as each recorded section of their story was added to a separate slide. Further enhancements like sound effects, music and animation, also added to the storyline. But what is important to note is that the structure that JoAnne so eloquently designed was integral to the design of this template that students eventually used to create and enhance their own personal stories.

It is without hesitation that I recommend JoAnne's writing program to any teaching staff. She made a tremendously positive impact on my instructional practice and the students benefited as a result.

Yours sincerely,
